RELEASE

MORE THAN 400 MILLION PEOPLE IN SEVEN COUNTRIES HAVE ACCESS TO FreeRetiredStuff.com

LEAVENWORTH, Kansas - June 01, 2006 - FreeRetiredStuff.com; a global, recycling resource provider, of free neighborhood text and photo classified ads, announced today it is completing the final stage of its internet search engine and directory submissions.

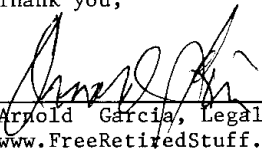

"I'm very pleased to report that the FreeRetiredStuff.com core service has been instituted on time for the May 1, 2006 'GRAND OPENING' to over 400 million people in seven (7) countries and is generating great results," said John G. Lambros, President and founder. "This stress testing phase, for the past thirty days, is among the last and most critical steps in our activation process, for serving over three (3) billion people with neighborhood-driven free classifieds, to enable donating and requesting usable unwanted stuff by August 1, 2006."

FreeRetiredStuff.com's mission is simple, "protect the environment, by keeping usable unwanted stuff out of neighborhood landfills," by donating or receiving.

The firm is the first of its kind to offer a free classified ad virtual newspaper for every neighborhood in the world, within one website, giving complete control to each individual neighborhood, thus integrating green practices into every home and business worldwide.
